Introducing Barbara Chenault

New gallery artist at Row House

We're excited to announce that Barbara Chenault has joined our gallery artists line-up. Barbara is a plein air impressionist landscape and still life painter. She enjoys studying the effects of light, color and atmosphere and then capturing that mood on canvas in her oil paintings.

Barbara's paintings reflect Cincinnati scenes as well as places she visits, such as her annual European painting vacations. She is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and has continued her studies through workshops with various outstanding artists. Her work has won many awards and has been purchased by many private and corporate collectors.

Please join us in welcoming Barbara to Row House and be sure to stop by soon to view her paintings!

Into the Arms of the Dragon by artist William S. Phillips

The Doolittle Raid on Japan was always designed as a one way mission: from the carrier to friendly airfields in China by way of Tokyo. Due to early discovery by Japanese picket boats, Captain David Jones and the rest of Crew 5 (aircraft 02283) left the deck of the USS Hornet knowing their one-way trip was perilously shorter. They knew that their B-25 did not have the range to make those friendly airfields, and getting to the China coast or past Japanese-occupied China would take great skill and uncommon luck. At a small break in the cloud cover over Chu Chow the members of Crew 5, who could coax their aircraft no further, left the plane, trusting their parachutes, the wind and the Chinese people to lead them to safety.

The Chinese paid dearly for the aid and shelter they provided to American soldiers. In the Zhejiang-Jiangxi Campaign, Japanese forces killed an estimated 250,000 Chinese civilians as retaliation and intimidation to prevent further assistance of American soldiers. The brave sacrifices of the Chinese saved many lives and solidified the American people in their determination to succeed. William S. Phillips inspiring new limited edition Into the Arms of the Dragon pays tribute to the combined efforts of two nations. Both the Fine Art Limited Edition Giclée Canvas and Fine Art Limited Edition Giclée Print of this spectacular image have been signed by surviving members of Doolittle's Raiders.

We're in love!
With the new Nielsen Gilded frames!

We realize that it probably takes someone in the framing business to fall in love with a frame! We have to tell you, however, that the new Nielsen Gilded Frames have our hearts! Why, you ask? They're metal, but they look just like wood! And, why is that so great? You can frame something that's really big - even something HUGE - with a small profile frame! And, they allow you to stack other frames within the edges for a spectacular custom look.

They really do look like wood, but don't take our word for it. Stop by and see for yourself! And, be sure to bring in your HUGE framing project for an estimate!

Greenwich SmallWorks - Experience the Spring 2008 Collection!

The Greenwich Workshop SmallWorks art is now featuring in the Spring 2008 collection. Each of the 40 pieces in the 2008 SmallWorks collection measures 144 square inches or less. They make wonderful art work for table tops, niche areas, in combination with other art - possibilities are endless.

This wonderful piece shown here by Emily McPhie is called The Knowledge of Good and Evil. "The painting is about right and wrong," says McPhie. "Not just knowing the difference, but making the right decision and having the conviction and confidence to stick to it. The figure in pink is very sure of herself and her choice; but, she's also struck a balance - she's not all in red and she's not all in white. She understands that the right decision is also about finding balance in all things and following it, and that there may not even be one right decision." Good, old fashioned chicken dinner!

St. Ann Church is a long-time Row House customer. They're hosting an "Indiana Style" Chicken Dinner on Sunday, April 6, from 1-6 PM at the church (2900 W. Galbraith Road in Colerain Township). The Cedar Grove Indiana Fireman will be handling the chicken frying tasks, and they're a force to be reckoned with when it comes to eating! And, this dinner is definitely easy on the wallet - just $10 for adults and $5 for children 12 and under. If you prefer eating your meals at home, carryout is available! And, to make the evening artful, St. Ann's will feature a raffle that includes a framed print - Silent Night by Liz Lemon Swindle. For additional information or directions, contact St. Ann Rectory at 513/521-8440.

If you have an embroidery machine or enjoy hand cross stitching, here's a very worthwhile opportunity for your consideration. There is a group working diligently to ensure that each fallen soldier's family receives a Memorial sampler in honor of their loved one.
